The imager's physical dimensions shall be no more than 135mm tall, 110mm wide and 200mm long.

4. Durability:

The imager shall remain operational after being submerged under 1 metre of water for 30 minutes. The imager shall withstand a 2 metre drop in any orientation and sustain no operational damage. The manufacturer must perform these tests in front of designated department representatives at a mutually determined time and location. Failure to perform these tests in front of designated department representatives shall constitute non-compliance with this portion of the specification.

5. Technology:

The imaging technology shall utilize a 240 x180 pixel un-cooled vanadium oxide (VOx) focal plane array.

The Noise Equivalent Temperature Difference (NETD) shall be less than 50 mK.

The imager shall exhibit an ability to evade whiteout when pointed directly at flames.

The detector shall operate with core temperature ranges of (-40°C to 79°C).

The dynamic range of the detector and associated electronics shall be nominally 592°C.

The detector spectral response shall be 7 to 14 microns.

Midwave or short-wave infrared products that operate below this portion of the infrared spectrum (below 7.5 microns) are not acceptable due to unreliable performance in smoky conditions.

The frame rate of the infrared engine shall be no less than 30 Hertz.

6. Image Colourisation

In order to provide a greater degree of safety, the imager shall utilize a tri-colour automatic colourisation mode.

This colorization mode shall utilize a yellow/orange/red colour scheme.

The display will show yellow colourisation at temperatures of 260°C to 426°C, orange colorization at temperatures of 427°C) to 537°C and red colorization at temperatures of 538°C or hotter.

7. Outer Housing:

The imager shall be ergonomically designed, and the outer shell or housing must be manufactured from heat-resistant Ultem® thermoplastic. Due to the likelihood of rigorous use, the Ultem must be molded with color pigment throughout to mask small surface scratches. Outer shells or housings that are painted or otherwise lack consistent color through their entire thickness are not acceptable.

11. Visual Indicators:

The imager shall have only one visual indicator system, a battery status indicator, to promote maximum ease-of-use. To reduce imager size, the battery status indicator symbology must be provided on the viewing display and not via an external indicator system such as a bank of separate LEDs.

The imager shall be capable of provide, on the viewing display, surface temperature measurement of objects. The imager must be able to provide simultaneous presentation of bar graph and numeric temperature indicators as well as separate presentation of either indicator.

12. Switches:

To ensure maximum ease-of-use, the imager must utilize only one switch. The sole function of this switch will be to power the unit. The recessed power switch must be electronic with a press and hold shutdown to avoid accidental shut-off.

13. Strap Systems:

To reduce bulk, the imager must not have an integral strap system; however, the imager shall accommodate an available self-retracting lanyard type strap. This retractable strap shall be attachable to a D-ring at the base of the thermal imager, under the display, and must be capable of holding the unit to the firefighter's body with the full weight of the imager, with battery, hanging unsupported from the strap.

14. Power Supply:

The imager shall be provided with two rechargeable batteries and a battery charger.

The batteries shall be 2.4-volt nickel metal hydride (NiMH) packs, providing a minimum of 2 hours of continuous use. The batteries shall have an Ultem outer shell. The batteries must be capable of being loaded into the housing only one way and must be inserted and removed by a person wearing standard firefighting gloves.

A lithium-ion battery is an unacceptable substitute for NiMH due to lithium's higher risk of explosion when exposed to high heat.

15. Operation:

The imager must be fully operational no more than four (4) seconds after activating the power switch. The imager must not have a standby switch or mode.

16. Battery Analysis and Conditioning

The hardware unit must utilize a PC software system that enables adding, naming, and removing batteries from a user's inventory. The software must be capable of automatically providing battery analysis and conditioning of up to four separate cycles to ensure optimal battery restoration. The hardware unit must be capable of conditioning up to four separate batteries simultaneously via multiple conditioning units or banks. The software must report analysis conclusions in simple English (i.e. "good" or "bad") for intuitive user understanding.

The software must also be capable of notifying the user, via mobile text messaging or email, upon the completion of battery charging and/or analysis / conditioning events. The unit must also be capable of separately charging a battery.

17. Truck Mount

The manufacturer must offer as an option, a truck mounted charging system to mount the imager and internal charging system in a vehicle or fire apparatus or on the wall of a fire station.

The charging system shall come standard with an additional battery, all necessary mounting hardware, a direct charge system, and a connector that enables the use of an AC/DC power supply. The system must charge the battery in the imager at the same time it charges a spare battery utilizing separate charging systems. The battery in the imager must be charged through contacts on the imager. No cables or wires connecting the imager to the charging system are acceptable, nor are straps or other connecting devices to hold the imager to the truck mounting system.

The system must be compliant to NFPA 1901 when properly mounted in a vehicle or fire apparatus. The truck mount must carry a one year warranty.

18. Orientation & Training:

The manufacturer must make available, free of charge, an online product and application orientation program. This program shall include a rich, interactive, multimedia experience providing comprehensive product familiarization and detailed application courses. The courses will be self paced and rich in multimedia content accompanied by voice presentation of course materials. At the completion of each course, the manufacturer must provide, via the orientation program, an individualized user assessment mechanism. PowerPoint, CD, or written orientation materials are unacceptable substitutes.

THERMAL IMAGERS USE IN FIRE SERVICES

The benefits of using thermal imaging technology as a firefighting tool encompass nearly every aspect of a firefighter's job. It allows the firefighter to be more effective and make better decisions. Some of the many uses of the Bullard EcoX Thermal Imager include:

- Search and rescue
- Scene assessment
- Locating the seat of the fire
- Determining the spread of the fire
- Locating hot spots
- Identifying potential flashover situations
- Determining ventilation points
- Determining entry and exit points
- Overhaul
- Hazmat
- Wildland firefighting
- Incident investigating

With the increased use of thermal imagers (TIs) in fighting wildland fires, firefighter safety can be enhanced and accountability improved on the ground when navigating through thick smoke with poor visibility.

Let's

Attacking on the ground and in the air

Fighting fires that span thousands of acres requires a unified attack from the ground and the air. When travelling by ground, the firefighter's vision may be obscured by smoke but using a TI helps him/her to identify safer travel routes based on terrain or fire movement. Ground crews that are equipped with TIs can closely monitor fire conditions in their immediate area and provide more localized, advanced warning when necessary. Using a TI gives wildland firefighters the added reassurance that they are not missing hot spots that could prove a threat to residential areas, or to the crew.

TIs are also an advantage when monitoring wildfires from the air. Through the air a TI can track the progress of the fire in any condition, including daylight or heavy smoke, which enables precise monitoring of the fire's progress that would not otherwise be possible. Accurately sizing up a fire allows the incident commander to properly deploy available resources and to make more effective stops on growing fires. For instance, using a TI in a helicopter gives the crew the added benefit of flying more than 400 feet above the ground, while monitoring the fire. An aerial attack provides a safe distance for the crew, while still gathering critical information needed to monitor and contain the fire. Both ground and air crews can effectively deploy thermal imagers.

Enhanced navigation and visibility

When firefighters travel by ground either in a vehicle or by foot, their vision may be obscured by the thick smoke of the fire. Thermal imagers used from a vehicle can assist the driver in navigating safely through thick smoke. If travelling by foot, firefighters can use the TI to help identify safer travel routes based on the terrain or fire movement. For instance, when searching for hot spots without the use of a TI, firefighters would have to crawl or stir the brush to find these spots. These methods are more time consuming and less effective. Thermal imagers also provide an effective means of night vision. Since the TI does not register light, its picture is consistent regardless of daylight conditions.

This can extend firefighting operations and enhance crew safety by improving accountability and providing clear views of surrounding terrain and potential escape routes.

Controlled burns

Controlled burns are critical to reducing fuel load and improving manageability of wildland fires. Using the image on the TI, wildland firefighters involved in prescribed burning can monitor the direction of fire spread and manage mop-up more effectively. A thermal imager can also reveal the travel of firebrands and embers from a prescribed burn, making spot fires easier to locate and control of the overall burn easier to maintain. This information enables firefighters to protect exposures and keep these burns in a controlled state.

Tragically, firefighters have lost their lives battling wildfires. The use of thermal imagers to help improve wildland firefighting operations offers firefighters many advantages both on the ground and in the air. Improving wildland firefighter safety and effectiveness can be greatly enhanced with the use of thermal imaging technology.

SECTION 4.6 MBD 9: CERTIFICATE OF INDEPENDENT BID DETERMINATION

1. This Municipal Bidding Document (MBD) must form part of all bids<sup>1</sup> invited.
2. Section 4 (1) (b) (iii) of the Competition Act No. 89 of 1998, as amended, prohibits an agreement between, or concerted practice by, firms, or a decision by an association of firms, if it is between parties in a horizontal relationship and if it involves collusive bidding (or bid rigging).<sup>2</sup> Collusive bidding is a pe se prohibition meaning that it cannot be justified under any grounds.
3. Municipal Supply Regulation 38 (1) prescribes that a supply chain management policy must provide measures for the combating of abuse of the supply chain management system, and must enable the accounting officer, among others, to:
  - a. take all reasonable steps to prevent such abuse;
  - b. reject the bid of any bidder if that bidder or any of its directors has abused the supply chain management system of the municipality or municipal entity or has committed any improper conduct in relation to such system; and
  - c. cancel a contract awarded to a person if the person committed any corrupt or fraudulent act during the bidding process or the execution of the contract.
4. This MBD serves as a certificate of declaration that would be used by institutions to ensure that, when bids are considered, reasonable steps are taken to prevent any form of bid-rigging.
5. In order to give effect to the above, the attached Certificate of Bid Determination (MBD9) must be completed and submitted with the bid:

<sup>2</sup> Bid rigging (or collusive bidding) occurs when businesses, that would otherwise be expected to compete, secretly conspire to raise prices or lower the quality of goods and / or services for purchasers who wish to acquire goods and / or services through a bidding process. Bid rigging is, therefore, an agreement between competitors not to compete.
